

References

1850 through 1900 federal censuses, including the Slave Schedules of 1850 and 1860

Lafayette County Mississippi Cemeteries, Volume I and II, published by the Lafayette County Historical and Genealogical Society (LCHGS) 1979

Case # 2247 Probate of George B. Cearley, 117 pieces assembled by the LDS at Chancery Court, Oxford

Probate of James Wylie Moreland, as assembled by the LDS at Chancery Court, Oxford; dozens of documents cover a 10-year period

“Faulkner’s County” by Don H. Doyle p. 314 “The Rednecks”; p. 357-358 “Lee Russell’s Revenge”

Index to the Marriage Licenses of Lafayette County 1846-1881 by Patricia Brown Young et al

Interview of Abb Cearley 3 September 1936, by Bill Ivy; reprinted in the Summer/Fall 2016 newsletter of the Lafayette County Historical and Genealogical Society

“The Hanging of Dock Bishop,” article by Glenda Murphree in the Calhoun City Monitor-Herald, July 14, 1960

“Dallas,” by Maxine H. Karr, article in Lafayette County Heritage Book published by LCHGS 1986

Oral interview of Mrs. Mildred Bland Harwell, Tula, MS, 2017 by Melinda Freeman

Personal files and Ancestry.com family trees on the Harwell & Moreland families; research by Melinda Freeman includes public records and personal family letters and early notes by her mother Elizabeth Moreland Morris

1939 enumeration of the CSA veterans in Dallas Cemetery; handwritten note in MS Archives

Headstone photos in Old Dallas and Hipp cemeteries by Melinda & Bill Freeman

Repair of headstones by Bill Freeman

Personal correspondence 2006 with Patricia Manson of CT, regarding her visit to Old Dallas in 1998 with her then 91-year-old aunt from the Dover family who pointed out where there had been markers and where she knew people to have been buried; the aunt remembered the cemetery from when a giant oak stood in the middle and that there had been hangings from that tree followed by immediate burials on the edge of the cemetery